Post-Acute Rehabilitation That Ensures Maximum Independence

For patients with a serious illness, injury, or age-related disability, post-acute care and rehabilitation can pose a major challenge. Once the need for acute care has passed, patients who require these types of services must look beyond the hospital for care. Our commitment to providing the best possible care in the most appropriate, patient-centered environment, allows us to help our rehab patients achieve maximum functionality, independence, and quality of life quickly and comfortably. That's why healthcare professionals and families throughout New Jersey have come to rely on Regency Rehab™ to fill the crucial transitional role of bridging hospital and home.

Regency Rehab's approach to rehabilitation is to consider each individual in our care as a "total patient" while focusing on his or her specific rehabilitation needs. This approach means tailoring each rehab program and care regimen to individual needs in order to ensure that we meet their goals.

Whatever the condition, our comprehensive sub-acute rehabilitation and skilled nursing services, combined with our unique approach to care, consistently produce successful results for our rehab patients.

Our Team Concept of Rehabilitation

Post-acute rehabilitation along with complicated medical conditions often requires complex, specialized services. Our interdisciplinary team of specially trained therapists, nurses and leading healthcare professionals provides this high level of care. Registered Nurse case managers, specially trained social workers, psychologists, registered dietitians, physical, occupational, speech and recreational therapists, integrate their skills to optimize each outcome.

Our Services

Utilizing the latest technology and methods, Regency Rehab's award-winning staff of licensed rehabilitation experts provides the highest levels of therapeutic care and specialized services, including:

Physical Therapy:

Designed to increase range of motion and cognitive-perceptual motor skills, our program utilizes the latest techniques and equipment and is customized to increase each patient's capabilities and quality of life.

Occupational Therapy:

Specialists analyze, design and adapt specific tasks or resources to enhance independent living skills and maximize abilities.

Speech and Language Therapy:

After careful evaluation, our speech and language pathologists offer specific guides for advancing communication skills impaired by stroke, illness or injury.

Regency Rehab's specialized medical, nursing and therapeutic services also include IV therapy, enteral feeding, wound care, pain management and intervention. These services include continuous monitoring and management, 24 hours a day.
